TEACHER OF THE YEAR

THE CLASS OF 1985 HAS NOMINATED DR. FRANCES X.B. PALUMBO TO BE TEACHER OF THE YEAR. ONE OF HIS MANY NOTEWORTHY QUALITIES IS HIS SENSITIVITY TOWARDS THE STUDENTS. DR. PALUMBO HAS AN EXTENSIVE BACKGROUND IN LAW AND PHARMACY AND HAS CHOSEN TO CONCENTRATE ON EDUCATION BECAUSE HE CARES FOR THE STUDENTS.

HE SHOWS A SINCERE UNDERSTANDING AND CONCERN FOR THE STUDENTS ON A PROFESSIONAL AS WELL AS A PERSONAL LEVEL.

FROM THE CLASS OF 1985 . . .
THANK YOU DR. PALUMBO

Bruce A. Bramble . . .
Bruce was a sweet and caring young man who made our lives much richer even though we shared a brief time with him.
We'll miss his subtle sense of humor and sensitive insight . . .

— his friends in the class of 1985

In memory of Jim Billerbeck, a tutor, par excellence . . .
We were all enriched by Jim's presence in our lives. He will be remembered for his boundless enthusiasm for education and his concern for people.

WILLIAM J. KINNARD, JR. — Dean and Professor of Pharmacology and Toxicology; B.X. University of Pittsburgh, 1955; Ph.D. Purdue University, 1957.

DEAN'S MESSAGE

Every five to six years the School is visited by an accreditation review team chosen by the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education. The purpose of the review is to see if our educational programs meet the national standards set by that organization and to point out our strengths and weaknesses. A team visited the School in January of 1985 and gave us high marks for our programs. We had some faults, even the great can fail occasionally, but one of the points of praise does stand out. They said that we had some of the best students in the country, when compared to other schools that they had visited. The descriptive words they used were — bright, articulate, and able to think on their feet.

There are many reasons for the quality of our students but none can be quantified. I would like to think that a range of school-related factors serve to allow each student to build on his or her natural abilities. Those factors include: a responsive faculty to individual and student needs; demanding and innovative professional curricula; and the availability of active extracurricular programs, ranging from professional fraternities to consumer information programs.

Regardless of why our students are so highly regarded, it is important that the fact be used as a base for the future of pharmacy practice. The profession needs you to continue to display all of the forementioned qualities. Pharmacy seems to be perpetually in tenuous times and we cannot afford to simply let the other fellow do the work. Whether you exhibit leadership skills with one of the professional associations or stand out as an individual practitioner, you must aggressively serve to move the profession forward.

1984-85 was a year that Phi Delta Chi increased it's community services without a sacrifice of their social notoriety. Highlights of the year included: Orioles games, the largest rush for this chapter (32 pledges), toy drives, blood pressure screening, and of course the annual Ft. Lauderdale trip.
